

1

A support information communication system for transferring requests for information support that is to be used by personnel performing servicing, mounting and/or dismounting of a bearing and/or a seal. The system includes one or more information terminals and an information support computer.